Art Deco isn't a style, it's an era!

David O'Loughlin, the convener of the Adelaide Chapter of the Art Deco and Modernism Society of Australia will talk about the beginnings of Art Deco at the 1925 Paris International Exhibition of Modern Decorative and Industrial Arts, and its subsequent introduction into the lifestyle and buildings of Adelaide.

Art Deco flourished in the era between the two World Wars, and David will talk about the influence the movement had on architecture, furniture, fashion and transport during that period. He will illustrate his talk with iconic images of examples of the style taken from the Adelaide of that era through to the 2017 Cleveland World Congress of Art Deco.

I/WE WILL BE ATTENDING DAVID O'LOUGHLIN'S TALK AT CARRICK HILL ON THURSDAY 8TH FEBRUARY 2018 at 7.00pm
