

THE FRIENDS OF CARRICK HILL INC

You are invited to become a privileged part of South Australia's cultural heritage.

Carrick Hill is a 1930s dream home created in the style of a seventeenth-century English manor house and set in nearly 40 hectares of formal gardens and bushland. It enjoys spectacular views across Adelaide and Gulf St. Vincent.

The house was built around an extraordinary collection of Tudor staircases, oak panelling, windows and doors bought by Ursula and Edward Hayward on their honeymoon in England. They spent the rest of their lives filling the house with a highly personal art collection. This wealth of drawings, sculptures, antiques and paintings spans nearly 500 years of artistic achievement.

Carrick Hill was a centre for stylish living, filled with laughter, artists, music, fine wines and food, and heady with the scent of flowers.

The Friends help to continue this tradition of quality in all things. The many social functions, private viewings, lectures and special events give you access to the delights of Carrick Hill's house, gardens and grounds.

The fund-raising activities of the Friends and their gifts to the collections play a vital role in ensuring that Carrick Hill survives for the benefit of future generations.
