

AUSTRALIAN MUSEUM of GARDENING

The Australian Museum of Gardening is to be established at Carrick Hill historic house and garden, a hillside estate located only twenty minutes from Adelaide's city centre. The Carrick Hill Trust (a statutory body vested with the governance of the heritage site) is committed to building the museum to store and present its collection as a permanent feature.

The museum will present stories that define our Australian gardening history. The donation of Old Mole's Tool collection forms the core component of this aspect of the museum. Collected by Richard Bird (Old Mole of Armidale, NSW) over two decades there are seven hundred and sixty objects from around Australia and the United Kingdom.

Other categories may be added to the Museum of Gardening under the acquisitions policy that the Carrick Hill Trust has in place; for instance two collections of gardening book have been offered that will form the gardening research & resource centre within the museum.

The opening of this new museum in October 2015 will coincide with the Australia Garden History Society's conference in Adelaide. Our mission is to preserve and present our gardening history and to promote it in close collaboration with the Society, our national history and heritage partner. Please consider supporting this new museum by making a tax deductible donation ($2 or more).

I understand that my donation will be tax deductible and will go towards establishing the new Australian Museum of Gardening at Carrick Hill.
